

NJ has the toughest laws on the Do Not Call issue, why should it be changed? Because the FCC isn't as tough doesn't mean we should change. It's what the people of this state want and maybe the FCC should tighten up their laws to match NJ. People who want telemarketing, fine, let them get the calls late at night, during dinner, etc. Why should our time shared with our families be interrupted? Do we really need to buy aluminum siding at 9 o'clock at night? If it's not broke, don't fix it.
